

LATEST NEWS

San Antonio > News > Industries > Health Care - Hospitals

Monday, June 9, 2008

InGenesis wins medical staffing contract with Fort Bliss Army hospital

San Antonio Business Journal

Print Article Email Article Reprints RSS Feeds Add to Del.icio.us Digg This

InGenesis Medical Staffing has won a $7.7 million contract with the U.S. Army to provide medical coding services for the William Beaumont Army Medical Center at Fort Bliss, Texas.

The contract began in June and will last for five years.

"We are pleased the Army chose InGenesis to staff this important Department of Defense medical facility with our professional medical coding employees," says Veronica Edwards, president and founder of InGenesis. "Our people will do an excellent job supporting WBAMC's mission of offering compassionate, cutting-edge health care services to thousands of patients each month."

The William Beaumont Army Medical Center has provided medical care to military personnel and their families since 1921. The hospital is located in El Paso.

Founded in 1998, San Antonio-based InGenesis places medical personnel for large hospital systems, medical clinics and military installations in Texas, Louisiana, Georgia, Missouri and Nevada.

Web site: www.ingenesis.org